

The goal of Lean is to create and improve the flow of products and services to the customers determined by first identifying and specifying value.

The Lean Principles, when collectively used, allows an organization to deliver the right output, at the right time, at the best value for the customer.

